|                                             |               | I am restoring the basement to what it was prior to it flooding and requiring a total demolish in 2024. It is just a concrete basement right now with a few original studs left (see attached plans for details). The two bedrooms and bathroom will be rebuilt exactly as they were when the house passed inspections and occupancy back in 2024. Both bedrooms have large windows for emergency escape that were determined adequate upon code inspection in 2024. Bathroom will have a tub shower, toilet, and sink with the exact dimensions as prior to the flood. All sizes will follow code and occupancy rules. All drywall and studs for the bathroom will be the special treated kind to endure moisture. The large studio room will have an open floor plan with the laundry room and furnace area. No changes will be made to vents or duct work as they were determined adequate prior to teardown. All ceilings will be drywall and no shorter than 7 ft. One ceiling fan and light will be located in each bedroom, and two located in studio room. All flooring will be LVP with exception to the laundry room corner where the utilities and floor drain are present. Smoke detectors will be both wired and have battery backups and located in all locations needed for code compliance. Electrical work will be done by a professional with permits. Any plumbing needs for the shower, sink, and toilet installation will also be done by a professional with permits. |                                 |                    |                                                                              |                   |                      |

| B-POOL ABOVE GRD: Pool, Above Ground Building     | 26-002583 | 48 inch above ground pool. We have assembled it because we didn't know that we had to have a permit for a non-permanent structure. We take it down every year because it's cheap and the winter weather will destroy the liner. We graded, put cushion down, and then the pool. The ladder is removed every time we leave the pool.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 403 Applestone Dr               | 08/13/2026 | Jeremy Flagg Flagg                                | 75      | 75      |
