| B-RES REMODEL: Residential Remodel Building    | 26-002401     | Retroactive permit for completed kitchen remodel. The kitchen was remodeled as new cabinets and counters were installed. There is a header above the counter along the family room. It is between the doors to the garage and the basement stairs. The lower portion of the wall was removed to create the open space. The wall is parallel to the floor framing and does not provide bearing support. The wall is not part of the structural support of the residence; therefore, modifications do not affect the bearing of the residence. A structural engineering letter is obtained.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | 247 Oakmont Farm Dr             | 06/16/2026         | Kenny Brown / Kimmswick Kitchen and Bath                                  | 202.34            | 202.34               |

|                                                |               | Interior residential remodel including demolition of existing interior finishes, flooring, baseboards, cabinets, bathroom fixtures, and lighting. Select interior non-structural walls will be modified and new non-load-bearing walls framed according to the revised floor plan, including pocket door openings and closet framing. No structural or load-bearing walls will be removed or altered as part of this project. Plumbing will be reconfigured in the master bathroom to relocate the shower and install a double vanity, along with new connections for sinks, toilets, dishwasher, and ice maker. A new gas line will be installed for the cooktop and a heat duct added in the water heater closet. Electrical work includes rerouting wiring as necessary, replacing exposed aluminum wiring if discovered, installing new circuits for kitchen appliances, adding countertop and island receptacles, lighting fixtures, switches, exhaust fans, smoke detectors, and low-voltage under-cabinet lighting. New drywall will be installed where required and all affected areas will be taped, mudded, and finished. Interior painting will include walls, ceilings, trim, and doors. New flooring will be installed including engineered hardwood, LVP in the recreation room, and tile flooring in the bathrooms, along with a tile backsplash in the kitchen. Bathroom work includes installation of a tub in the guest bath and an Onyx shower base and wall system with a glass shower door in the master bath. | 483 Brightspur Ln               | 06/02/2026         | Ryan Herzog / RJH Remodeling                                              | 480               | 480                  |
